Draft opinion	Amendment
In order to maximise these effects, there is a need to facilitate the production and consumption of culture and the development of creativity. The CoR underlines the importance of learning creative skills from an early age, thus empowering the young generation to fully benefit from the new forms of access to culture and better prepare for future jobs, particularly helping them and the wider society to deal with the consequences of the digital shift.	In order to maximise these effects, there is a need to facilitate the production and consumption of culture and the development of creativity. The CoR underlines the importance of learning creative skills from an early age, thus empowering the young generation to fully benefit from the new forms of access to culture and better prepare for future jobs, particularly helping them and the wider society to deal with the consequences of the digital shift. In this regard it is recommended the elaboration and implementation of a European level project aimed at urging the development of creative didactic environment in primary education systems.

Reason

Starting already in the primary education, future generations should be assured an environment contributing to the development of their creative problem-solving skills.
